

Dear friends of Row Bob Row,

My husband Steve and I are relative newcomers to the wide circle of friends in Bob and Sue Lynch's life. Getting to know them didn't take any time at all, as they welcomed us into our new community and into their lives. We've benefited, as have others, from their hopeful and exuberant spirits, their commitment to encourage others, their mutual love for one another, and the teamwork they demonstrate in their effort to beat cancer with hopefulness, prayer, and love.

Watching Bob's video documentary of his many rows is mind-boggling. I'm stunned by the level of sheer planning, physical training, and faith stretching belief required. Did I mention time? Expense? Exhaustion? I wish everybody in America and beyond could hear Bob tell his story with his characteristic self-effacing humor and candor. People who struggle with much smaller issues will gain perspective and hope as they watch it. Anyone staring cancer in the face will feel empowered. Best of all, Bob and Sue's story will tune up your life in a way you'll not forget. May God multiply their work and their example!

I hope you'll share their story by purchasing this well-done documentary DVD and sharing it with others in your sphere of influence. You never know who will need the message next.

Warmly,

---
